Therapeutic Massage

Treatments such as trigger point therapy, deep tissue massage and soft tissue manipulation will be applied to address specific problems. Therapeutic massage can also be an important aspect of a treatment plan established with your health care provider. Appropriate to relieve muscle tension, muscle cramping, or muscle spasm. Therapeutic massage improves circulation, is an excellent means of pain management, promotes healing, and reduces scar tissue. This form of massage can be an invaluable tool in the healing journey.

Relaxation Massage

Slow, rhythmic massage strokes are the foundation of this indulgent, whole body massage. A relaxation massage instills a sense of balance between mind and body, allowing our innate healing potential to surface. A quiet and meditative experience, often accompanied by soft music, a relaxation massage is a perfect choice to offset today's hectic pace.

Hot Stone Massage

The ancient healing art of stone massage combines heat and massage to relax the body at the deepest level for a gentle, yet effective treatment. The warm stone's thermal conduction brings about local and systemic change in the body and influence the energy centers for body and mind balance, creating harmony, a positive energy flow and a sense of balance and peace.

Craniosacral Therapy

A gentle, soft touch technique that allows the body to take itself into any restrictions related to the central nervous system and release them in a safe, pain free manner. Craniosacral therapy can be combined with massage, or taken on it's own as a healing treatment.

Reflexology and Reiki

Reflexology is a way of accessing the entire body through pressure points in the hands, feet & ears. Because the feet are a mini map of the entire body this form of therapy can offer relief from tension and often pain. Reiki, done through the ages as a way to extract root causes of energy blockage. This is done hands on, hands over and with a quiet present mind.

Aroma Touch Therapy

A clinical approach to applying essential oils along energy meridians and visceral contact points of the back and feet to help balance the sympathetic and parasympathetic nervous systems of the body.

Lymphatic Drainage

A gentle, noninvasive manual technique that has a powerful effect on the body. The skin is stretched and torqued in a specific manner, based on scientific, physiological principles that have proven to encourage lymph flow. If performed correctly with the correct pressure, direction and speed, this can greatly enhance recovery and facilitate drainage. It also has profound effects on systems in the body.

Acupuncture

We all have a complex system of channels which flow through our body distributing energy, or life force, to all our tissues. Health problems arise when there is an obstruction in the flow of life force or an imbalance in the bipolar components of this flow. Acupuncture involves the insertion of sterile, disposable needles at particular points in specific patterns. Acupuncture can improve circulations, decrease inflammation and restore the energetic balance in the body, stimulating the healing process.
